

Whidbey Audubon Society presents virtually on Zoom

David B. Williams

Based on his book, Homewaters: A Human and Natural History of Puget Sound, David will explore the long story of the Sound, tracing human history from the earliest records more than 12,500 years ago to present. Along the way, he'll discuss Native people, the arrival of explorers and settlers, and how the various inhabitants adapted to place. He will also weave in stories of the natural world, covering often overlooked species such as Olympia oysters, rockfish, geoduck, kelp and herring, as well as salmon and orca – the variety of elements that nurture life in this environment.

Homewaters

A HUMAN AND NATURAL
HISTORY OF PUGET SOUND

Thursday, June 9

7 p.m. brief meeting

7:30 program starts

~ All are welcome to this free program ~

Register at www.whidbeyaudubonsociety.org for an invitation to this program via Zoom. Please register by Noon, Thursday, June 9